'High Five' was a screening project high up on the side of an office building (at the junction of Wellesley Street and Waipole Road) in central Croydon.

It lasted for five days.

The project featured 14 works by contemporary art movie authors resident on the Oflica TV contemporary art channel.

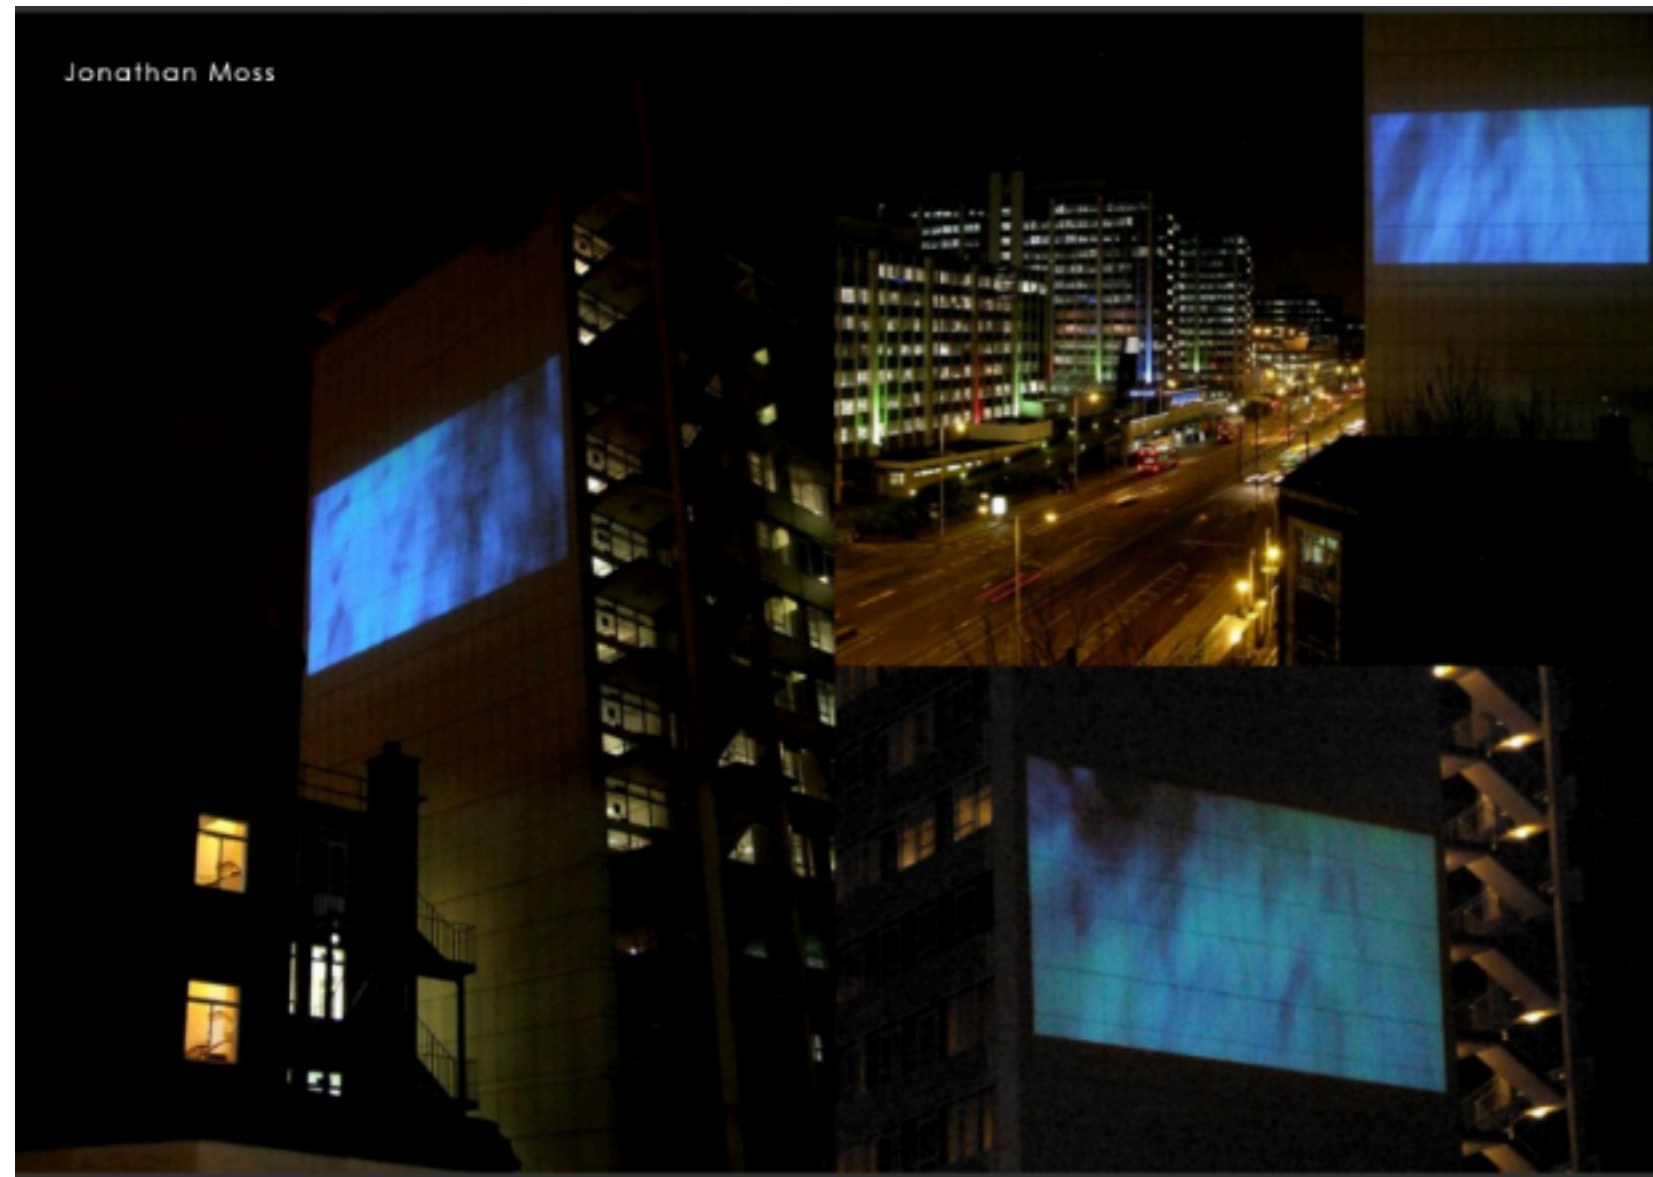

Its location was visible to the many pedestrians and road users in the town, being just between the bus and rail stations and along the main high street of Croydon.

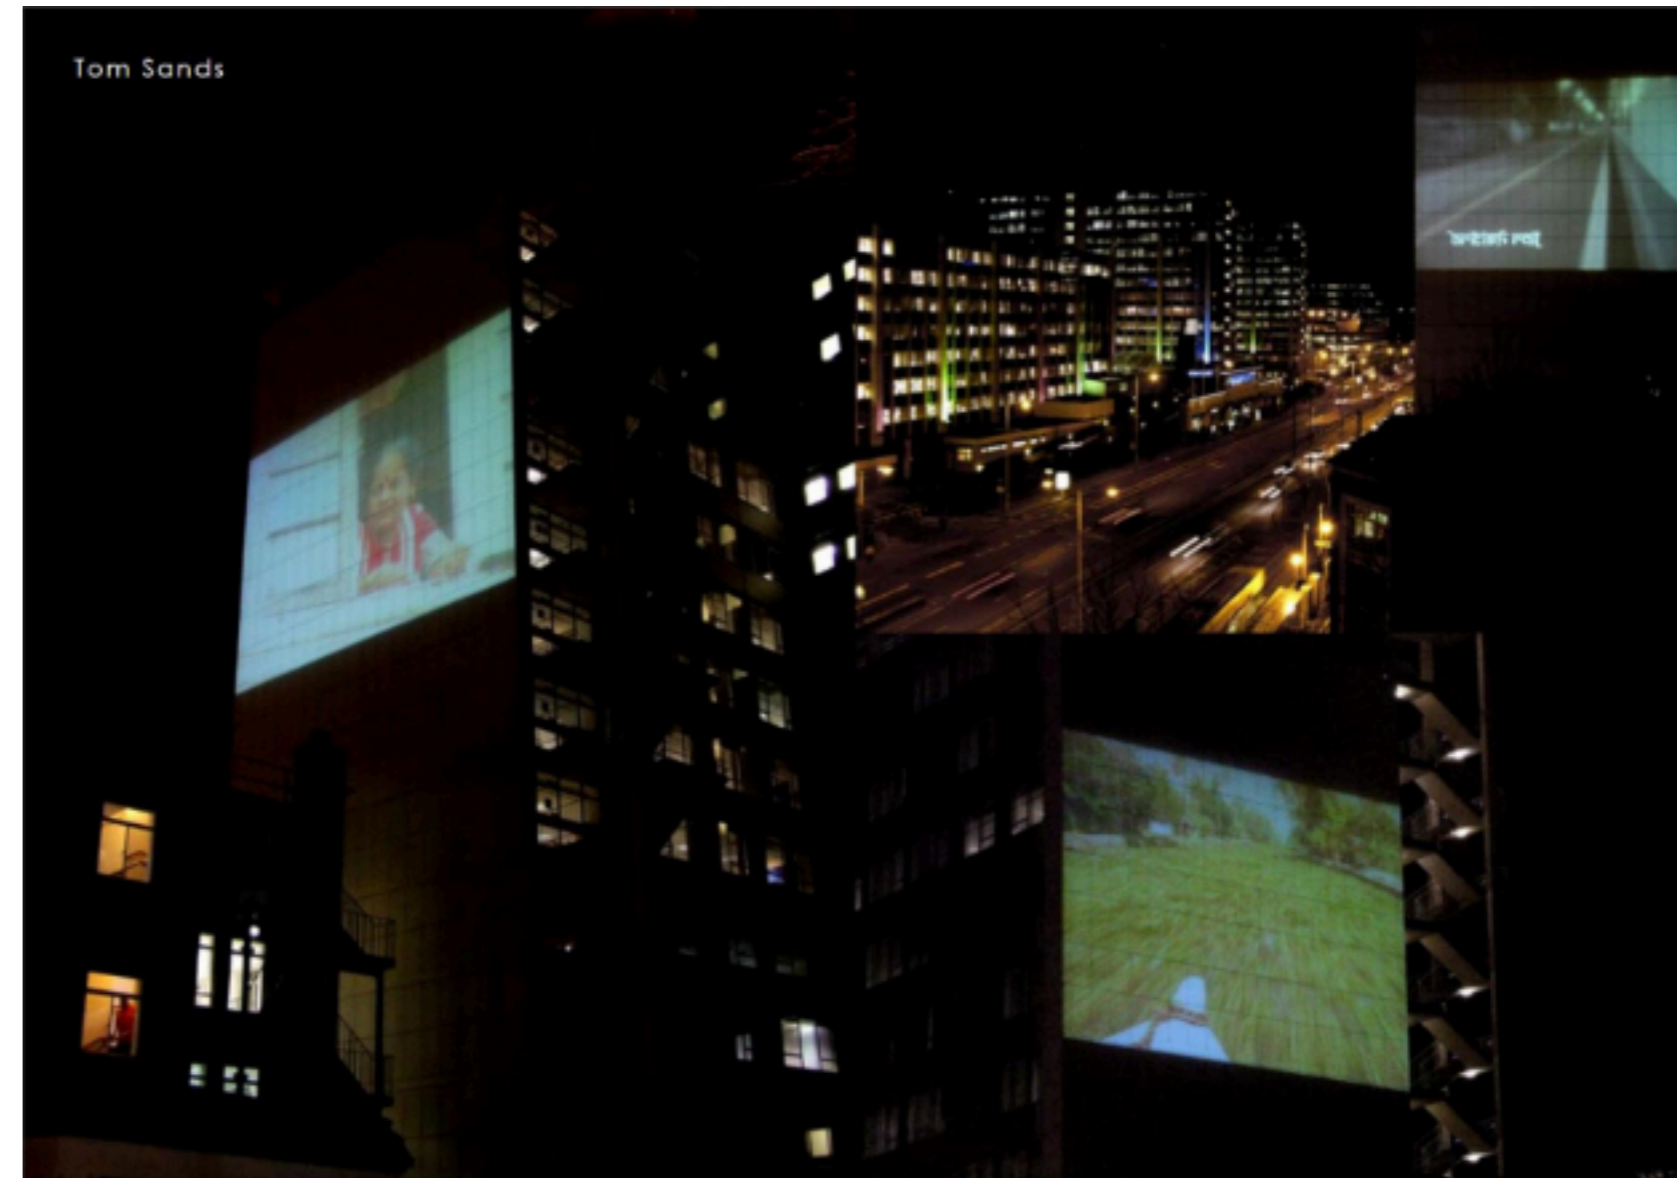

The event took place from Monday 25th January to Friday 29th January 2010, starting at 6pm and running until midnight on a continuous loop.
